EXCLUSIVE!

Luisa hots up Marbella!

Or, how the Celeb BB star spent her show fee!

WE KNOW of two things that Celebrity Big Brother contestant Luisa Zissman splashed out her sizeable fee on. A swift break in the sun to Marbella – illustrated here via the wonderful medium of "Luisa in bikini". And a snowy white, 490bhp, 193mph Ferrari California (second hand, mind. Luisa knows a good deal when she sees one). And while, sadly, we fear that the only element we'll ever see of this story with its top down is the Ferrari, we can still get to enjoy Luisa, a blinged-up bikini and some seriously enviable pool time.

"My ears are in here, somewhere..."

BLINGED BABE!

THE SPOILS OF CBB! With all the bells and whistles, Luisa's flash Ferrari California would have cost around £200k if it was purchased new. It'll hit 62mph in 3.8 seconds.

"So I hit this button and wow! That was unexpected!"

"Luisa love, it's 10am. Maybe you make that your last tequila, eh?"

"Dang, forgot to wear my gunbelt again!"

Turn over for more racy Luisa pics!

"Yup. Still the best view on the resort!"

Luisa on her sex drive!

"I've got a really high sex drive, a healthy libido. What's wrong with that?"

On sex parties!

"I remember going to this party and thinking, 'This is really fking cool!' It's like a club full of like-minded people. No one's judging you. It's high class. It's not a seedy joint. Everyone's clothed and wearing masks. I wore a little eye mask and a black dress."

On her sexuality!

"I love girls, but I wouldn't have a relationship with a girl. I've been with both guys and girls."

On her type of woman!

"I don't have a certain kind of man but I'm a lot fussier with women. They have to be blonde, really skinny and have massive boobs."

On dating!

"I don't need a fancy restaurant. Laser Quest would be good for me."

On men!

"I don't go for looks – I go for people who make me laugh."

On Celeb BB – in July 2013!

"No, I don't want to do Celebrity Big Brother. It's sh*t and embarrassing!"

On herself!

"I have the energy of a Duracell bunny, the looks of Jessica Rabbit and the brains of Einstein!"

"You may want to step back a pace or two, mate..."

"And look! I pull these, and those go up and down!"

Luisa subtly positioned herself in front of the 'No reality TV contestants' image

Unbelievably, there's more Luisa!

On porn!

"I don't need the money and I don't think you can do porn just for kicks. It's a job. You have to do things you're not comfortable doing and that's not how I do things."

On Celeb BB housemate Jasmine Waltz!

"I was really attracted to her because she's wild and crazy. She fancied me too. We were like two crazy arseholed bitches!"

On fun with toothbrushes!

"One night [during Celebrity Big Brother] Jasmine and I nicked Ollie's electric toothbrush. It was vibrating and we played with it. We were running it all over our bodies for a thrill. I bet they didn't show that."

On Helen Flanagan's boobs!

"I would like to put it out there. I love Helen Flanagan and her amazing real boobies. I would motorboat her all day long!"

On boozing!

"I can drink a lot, and then there's that one or two tequilas too many. And then I don't remember anything after that. Then it's like, get naked and throw my knickers around my head."

On posing nude!

"I'd love to appear in Playboy. It's like an institution. But obviously I'm not going to do it for free. I'd do it for a million pounds, but I doubt they'd have me!"

Wave rejects surfer!

Water gets revenge!

FUNNY PICTURES of surfers usually occur as they wipe out under a tonne or two of foamy brine. But this doozy is the polar opposite, as Newport Beach, California, surfer dude Bobby Okvist didn't get enough oomph into this wave, and got spat into the air like a champagne cork out of a vintage Dom Pérignon!

WORDS: RORY BUCKERIDGE PHOTOS JOHN'SALAMOA/ SOLENT NEWS AND PHOTOS

Quietly, wave stalked his prey...

"Eek! It's cold!"

"Coo-ee! Mum! Can you throw over the shower gel, please?"
It seemed a good time to practise his "Karate Kid"...

Miley Cyrus analysed!

But what does the twerking pop star's Bangerz Tour actually mean?

WITH ITS twerking, crotch grabbing and freaky cuddly toys, pop pixie Miley Cyrus' current tour is brimming with all sorts of media-bating sauciness. So we tapped up celebrity psychologist Jo Hemmings to stick the Bangerz Tour on the couch and tell us what it all means!

CELEBRITY SHRINK!

Jo has lent her talents to shows such as Daybreak, This Morning and Big Brother's Little Brother.

Clinton was having another cheese dream

FELLATING AMERICAN PRESIDENTS!

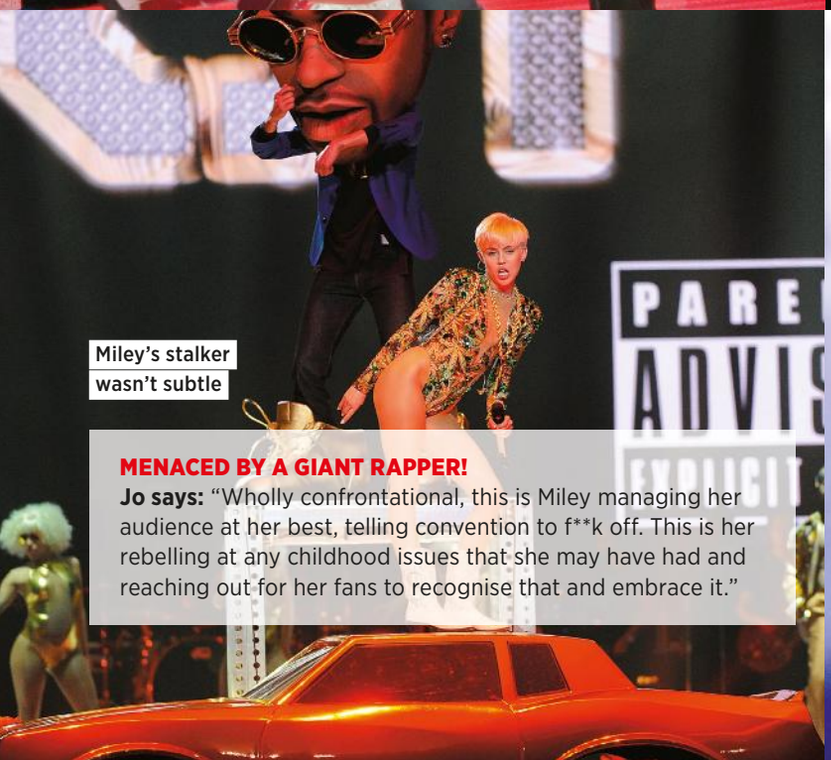

Jo says: "This is all about control. As an aberrant country and western singer – wholesome, yet sexually charged – Miley's going down on establishment figures to declare that the traditional values that the USA holds dear can go swivel."

Alton Towers' new Unnaturally Rectangular Mouth ride was a hit

SLIDING IN THROUGH HER OWN FACE!

Jo says: "Psychologically, this is as loud an announcement about her arrival as it can get. It's dramatic, it's shocking and it's a major statement about being defiant, proud and outrageous – a theme which runs through her performances."

Miley's stalker wasn't subtle

MENACED BY A GIANT RAPPER!

Jo says: "Wholly confrontational, this is Miley managing her audience at her best, telling convention to fk off. This is her rebelling at any childhood issues that she may have had and reaching out for her fans to recognise that and embrace it."

"Got any Reggae Reggae Sauce for this? Thanks"

CHOWING DOWN ON LADIES' UNDIES!

Jo says: "A direct challenge to any preconceptions about femininity, she's basically saying that traditional girly sexiness can go suck. She's in control here, reinventing men's perceptions of what they perceive to be sexy."

PHOTOS: REX FEATURES, NPG, CORBIS

Gorillas In The Mist: The Musical was a bit tacky

TERRIFYING, MAN-SIZED PLUSHIES!

Jo says: "Another challenging and provocative scenario. She's taking the pink, fluffy comfort of a child's plush toy, enlarging it to a gross and giant size and posturing sexually in front of it. While the toy monkey looks alarmed, she's in control."

She eschewed convention when it came to personal alarm systems

DANCING WITH A TINY BELL!

Jo says: "The Liberty Bell is an iconic symbol of American independence. Like the fellatio anti-establishment image, this is designed to cause offence. I think she's a hugely confident and ambitious girl, playing with, and to, her audience."

The latest series of Man vs Food was the best yet

RIDING A BUS-SIZED HOTDOG!

Jo says: "You don't have to be a psychologist to recognise that she's riding a huge phallus here. In fact, this is such a cliché that I think it might imply that Miley may have some sexual orientation issues herself."

Sugababes had yet another new line-up

BIG BACKING DANCER/SMALL BACKING DANCER!

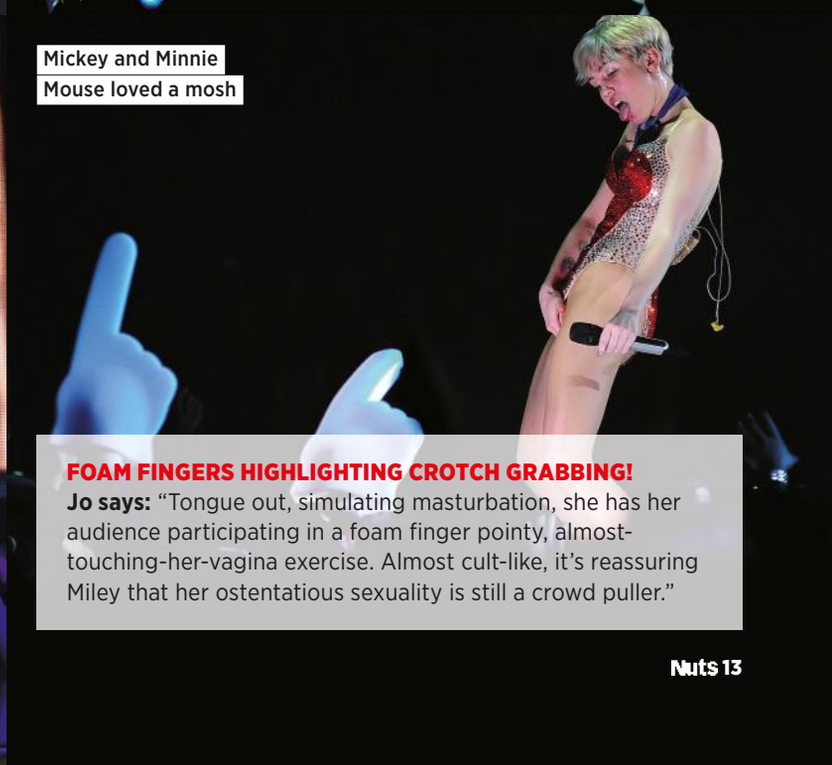

Jo says: "Flanked by two different-looking backing dancers, yet they, like her, are dressed in red, so she's bridging that gap between these extreme contrasts. She's promoting harmony here, suggesting that beauty comes from within."

Robin Thicke had directed Kwik-Fit's new ads

LEGS OPEN ON A GOLDEN MUSCLE CAR!

Jo says: "Legs spread, she's simulating masturbation while two scantily clad women lean towards her in appreciation. This may be the ultimate self-gratification pose, fuelling male fantasies while encouraging sexual liberation of the girls."

Mickey and Minnie Mouse loved a mosh

FOAM FINGERS HIGHLIGHTING CROTCH GRABBING!

Jo says: "Tongue out, simulating masturbation, she has her audience participating in a foam finger pointy, almost-touching-her-vagina exercise. Almost cult-like, it's reassuring Miley that her ostentatious sexuality is still a crowd puller."

2014's coolest phones!

Poked at by geeks at MWC in Spain!

LAST WEEK saw Barcelona open its finest exhibition spaces for MWC – the Mobile World Congress, where scores of tech journos stomp the carpets in sandals, drying their skin out in the air conditioned atmosphere while frowning and prodding the very latest in mobile tech. Here's our pick...

WORDS: RORY BUCKERIDGE

BEST FOR... HD FANS

SONY XPERIA Z2

Nuts says: The roomy, 5.2in screen's a full HD, 1920 by 1080 resolution, there's 3GB of RAM and a 2.3GHz chip. The big-ticket number is the 20.7-megapixel camera that records in full 4K definition.

BEST FOR... PHONE SNOBS

SAMSUNG S5

Nuts says: With a nicely dimpled polycarbonate back, this is a sweet update for the iPhone enemy. Also new: a fingerprint scanner, heart-rate detector, 16.0-megapixel camera and it's waterproof! Plus, if you're in a battery bind, an "Ultra Power Saving Mode" turns the display black and white, and shuts down unnecessary features to save on vital juice.

BEST FOR... OPTIMISTS

HTC POWER TO GIVE

Nuts says: More an app than an actual phone, when your mobile's unused, charging and connected to Wi-Fi, the Power To Give app lends its processing power to boffins, creating super computer networks to help save the world and that.

BEST FOR... SELFIES

HTC DESIRE 816

Nuts says: Stereo speakers on the front are a boon, as is the 13.0-megapixel camera on the back. But Instagram fans will be grabbing this for the 5.0-megapixel front-facing snapper, and its wonderful selfie operation.

BEST FOR... DRUMMERS

LG G PRO 2

Nuts says: The specs are high – there's a 5.9in HD display, stabilised 13.0-megapixel camera etc. But the particularly interesting bit is "Knock Code", which will unlock the phone upon hearing any of 86,367 knock patterns, finger-tapped on the screen.

BEST FOR... YOUR NAN

HUAWEI ASCEND Y530

Nuts says: This average spec phone runs vanilla Android OS, but you can swap it for a simple stripped down, enlarged interface for first-time smartphone users. Or the hard of thinking. Costs £150.

BEST FOR... PARANOID

THE BLACKPHONE

Nuts says: This boasts a suite of apps to offer the highest levels of security – anonymous searching, encrypted calls and file transfers. Plus, it will self-destruct all of its data if it detects tampering. Awesome.

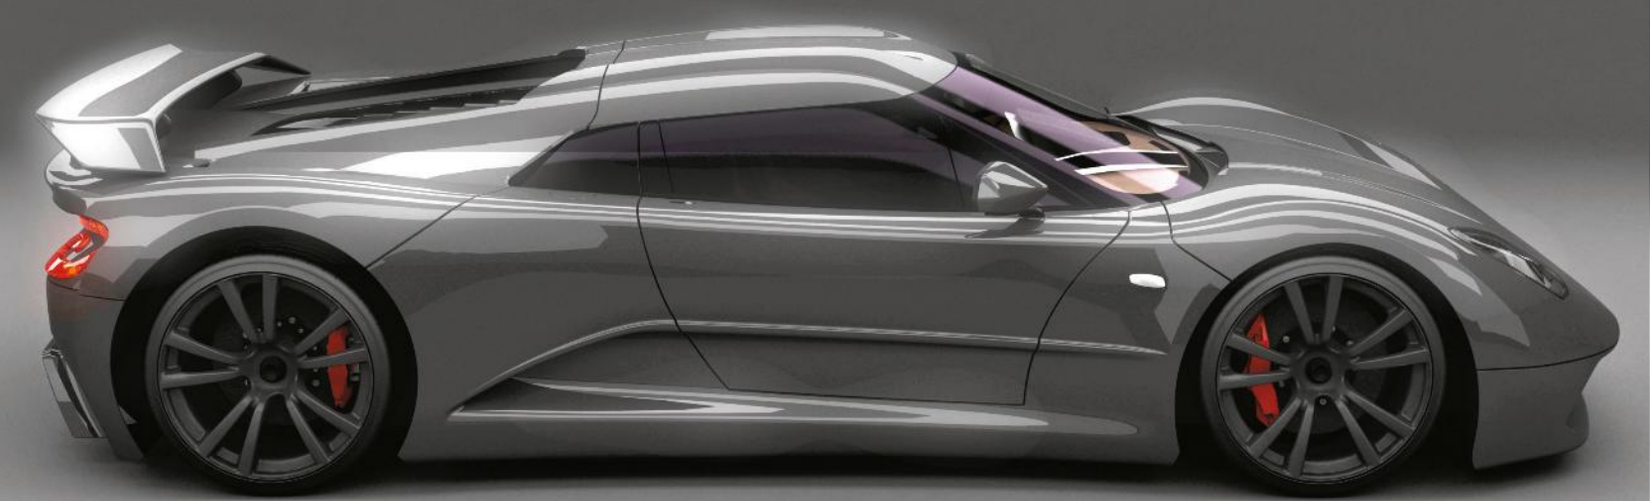

Car regretted the trout pout

French 220mph, 1,200bhp hypercar!

The Genty Automobile company says: Bonjour! We say: Oui!

- It's easy to forget that Bugatti is a French car brand because it's now owned by the Germans. And with over a century of racing and building exotica to its name, Bugatti couldn't be more different to France's latest supercar purveyor – the seven-years-in-the-making Genty Automobile company.
- Their Akylone, then, is a self-proclaimed hypercar capable of pushing numbers like 220mph and above 1,200bhp. And first impressions of the mid-engined V8 are that it looks frankly fantastique! A lot like a gallic Koenigsegg Agera, with its opening rear clam shell, scissor doors and twin-turbo induction.
- G-shaped rear LED lights and two centrally mounted exhausts live inside a honeycomb mesh, which sits above a diffuser that dominates the back end. The Agera-style (yes, we keep harping on about the Koenigsegg, but it does look similar, right?) wrap-around aviation-style windscreen provides a panoramic driver's view, while bystanders get to gaze at the engine through a louvred Perspex engine window beyond the cabin.
- The car tips the scales at 1,101kg which is because the chassis has been built with a mix of carbon fibre and billet machined aluminium.
- With a weight distribution of 42/58, power is sent to the rear tyres via a six-speed sequential paddleshift. If the stats are to be believed, this Genty will be an animal –

Car headed towards the white light...

0-124mph in 7.2 seconds, 0-186mph in 14.0 and a quarter-mile scram in 9.8. And like the Koenigsegg, the Genty can be fuelled on E85 ethanol bio-fuel or super unleaded.

- So, while slower at the top end than the Koenigseggs, Veyrons and US-based Hennesseys of this world, the Akylone isn't what you'd dare call slow. All boding well, you'll see production commence at the tail end of this year in the Genty plant at Saint-Pourçain-sur-Sioule – the birthplace of company founder Frederic Genty.
- If this happens, only 25 cars in total are slated to be built, with ten being open-roofed roadsters. Expect to part with £400k for the coupé, a smidge more to remove the roof.

FERNE McCANN

“Shooting for Nuts was so much fun!”

Hello Ferne! We're all chuffed that TOWIE's back. What's new?
Hello! Well I'm really excited about being back, too, and extra excited about being single for the new series.

As are the men of Great Britain! What was the reaction to your Nuts debut last year?
Great. Shooting for Nuts was so much fun. It was so nice to be messing around in my undies, doing a sexy shoot. I felt great!

You seem to hog the camera a fair bit. Do you feel like the star of the show these days?
Well, I feel like I'm more genuine. I say it how it is. I'm not so plastic and fake. Obviously the main reason is because of my break-up with Charlie [in the last series], but clearly someone in the editing room likes me.

If you buy the producers posh biscuits, do they give you more screen time?
Ha! I just think when you've got an interesting, explosive, dramatic storyline you always get more screen time. When I joined, I seemed to get more time on screen than any other new character. Without wishing to blow my own trumpet, I feel like I'm a breath of fresh air.

What makes a bloody good night out, in your opinion?
When we all went to Vegas last year, we went to Calvin Harris, and I was within touching distance of Avicii. We went to a pool party, and there were so many of these girls – table brasses – who jump on men's tables. We're the type of girls to go out and buy our own drinks – independent women! Me, Billie, Sam and Lucy had such a wild time.

Is Las Vegas just the Brentwood of America, then?
Yeah, in Vegas anything goes! You can get so glammed up every single night of the week, which is exactly what Essex ▶ is like. Vegas is just insane. It's full of beautiful people and everyone just wants to have a good time. The clubs, bars and restaurants are all in the hotels, so it's got that kind of Miami feel. It's brilliant.

Now you're single, what sort of a chap are you looking for?
I'm not going to be another one of those characters on the show who ends up getting with someone who got with my best friend in the past. I'm starting to think that Essex is incredibly incestuous!

So much of TOWIE seems to be a lot of "he said, she said". Isn't it just like being in one big sixth-form common room?
I wouldn't say it's like being at school, no! The situation's weird, though, because it's not normal to see what your ex says about you behind your back. If everyone saw what people were saying behind their back, all hell would break loose. You'd retaliate – that's why there's constant drama and constant arguments. I suppose it could look like we're back in the playground, but it's all good fun.

Thanks for the chat, Ferne. Finally then, what's the strangest thing that a fan's done or asked for?
I haven't been on the show that long, so I haven't experienced that much of it. I had a fan come into the shop where I work who'd made me up a hamper of stuff – which I found quite weird. Some bar tweeted me the other week, saying, "It was so nice having Ferne McCann at our place last night..."

We see where this is going...
I was like, "What the fk?" I definitely wasn't there! They tweeted something like: "She really enjoyed her bottle of Blossom Hill and she was great company." Then there was a picture of a photo of me in a frame, on a bar with a bottle of wine. It was so strange!

CELEBRITY MYTHS BUSTED! with JACK WHITEHALL

What's being famous really like? We asked Jack Whitehall to tell us!

THE MYTH: CELEBRITIES GET LOADS OF FREE STUFF!

JACK SAYS: TRUE!

"I went to a show and got a goody bag that contained a scarf and some male Ugg boots. I handed them to a tramp as I thought he'd appreciate them more. As I walked away, I remembered there was also a voucher for a teeth-whitening clinic, which I'd given to a man who had three teeth. No wonder he grinned. If you see a tramp with pearly white teeth, I made it happen."

THE MYTH: FAMOUS PEOPLE DON'T CARE WHAT REVIEWERS SAY!

JACK SAYS: FALSE!

"I read my own reviews and get really depressed and negative. You try to stop, but as soon as the next reviews come, you read them again. I got one star for a charity gig, which I thought was quite harsh. It was to raise money for a hospital. Surely you've got to give an extra star just for the cause?"

JACK WHITEHALL

THE MYTH:
FAMOUS TYPES ARE ALL MINTED!

JACK SAYS: FALSE!

"I have the same accountant as Dappy, so I spunked all my money up the wall. I'm afraid I'm permanently penniless. I made some very bad investments with a guy called Bernard Madoff [an infamous Wall Street fraudster]. He seemed so nice – he made it seem like such a good idea. I pumped it all into that and everything I had spare I used to fund that Diana film, so it's been a terrible couple of years." [We think he's telling porkies about this – Ed]

THE MYTH: SHOWBUSINESS SORTS ARE PROBABLY SECRET "SEX PEOPLE"!

JACK SAYS: TRUE!

"People become interested in your sexual persuasion once you get a profile. There are rumours about every star being gay. I'm very camp. I watch myself and I'm like, 'Jesus Christ! Why am I so flamboyant?' I spend so much time with Jamie Redknapp and people see the way he looks at me. It's embarrassing."

THE MYTH: CELEBRITIES DON'T USE PUBLIC TRANSPORT!

JACK SAYS: FALSE!

"I've only had a few altercations with rude boys on night buses in my life. You know the ones who sit at the back of the night bus and play their music really loud on their mobile phones? I find they don't like it if you make requests. I was drunk, I turned round, the leader of the pack stared at me and went, 'Yeah, what do you want, bruv?' I went, 'Ooh, some Michael Bublé?'"

THE MYTH: THE MORE FAMOUS YOU ARE, THE DARKER YOUR SECRETS!

JACK SAYS: FALSE!

"I don't know whether I would have been a serial killer if I hadn't become famous, although people have commented on how I look like a bit of a young Peter Sutcliffe. Serial killers normally keep themselves to themselves. Stand-up is the opposite of that. You're keeping nothing to yourself. People who say that are wrong. I don't think anyone does say it anyway!"

THE MYTH: TOP COMICS USE THEIR SKILLS TO BED PRETTY LADIES!

JACK SAYS: FALSE!

"This is something that often gets said, but I think it's a lot easier to laugh a woman out of your bed, or laugh a woman away from your bed. Humour is the enemy of romancing. It's hard to judge what's appropriate. Someone always says the wrong thing and misjudges the mood. I've tried to be funny and it's all ended in tears on so many occasions."

THE MYTH: FAMOUS PEOPLE ALWAYS LOOK DIFFERENT IN REAL LIFE!

JACK SAYS: TRUE!

"Someone told me that I looked like a fat version of myself, which was a great moment in my career. I was at a music gig in Camden, some guy came up and said, 'You look like a fat Jack Whitehall!' I said, 'Thanks very much. Now, do fk off!'"

- Jack Whitehall Gets Around tours from 5 March. See jackwhitehall.com

THE MYTH: FAMOUS PEOPLE BLAG THEIR MATES INTO AMAZING EVENTS!

JACK SAYS: TRUE!

"They normally get drunk and misbehave, so you've got to be careful which friends you take where. Me and my friend once fan-girled the Chuckle Brothers at the Royal Variety Show. You know, fan-girling? Going over and going, 'You're amazing!' Anyway, it wasn't even both Chuckle Brothers. It was a Chuckle Brother. It was Paul. Barry wasn't there. We both got overly excited, but I guess that was my fault rather than my friend's."

THE MYTH: COMEDIANS ARE ACTUALLY REALLY SAD PEOPLE!

JACK SAYS: TRUE!

"A lot of us are quite neurotic and not as happy as we are on stage. I wouldn't say that everyone's sad, but we all have bad moments, dark days. Comedy is very personal. I did a gig to a group of industrial gardeners in Bournemouth. One of them put me in a headlock, and security thought he was a stooge and part of the act, and it was very scary. I thought I might die."

Rosie Jones

“We’re having a sleepover at India’s house!”

Hello Rosie! How the devil are you?
Hello! Fantastic, thanks. I'm still recovering from my annual jaunt to Las Vegas with the girls, which was good fun. I've also taken delivery of a new puppy.

Awesome! We're a pooch-friendly mag, so tell us more about your new best mate...
He's a French bull and is adorable, but he just poos and wees all over my house. Plus he always gets covered in mud so then I have to bath him. Dogs are awesome, but when you see them eat their own poo, it does put you off a bit.

Indeed. Is it right that you were stranded by the recent floods?
Yeah! It was pretty bad near me – all the roads were cut off. India Reynolds got completely stuck in her house, so we toyed with the idea of getting all the Nuts girls onto some sort of sexy ark to go and rescue people and boost morale.

Great idea! So, what's the most embarrassing thing that's happened to you recently?
The other day, I was on the high street – it was really busy. Anyway, coming out of a shop, I did one of those comedy slips you only see on films. My whole body went up in the air and I landed on my arse. I limped away in pain as no one came to help me. So embarrassing. And I fell down the stairs later that day. What is wrong with me?

Ha! So, how do you get yourself psyched up for a shoot when you don't have your fellow booby babes to bounce off?
Oh, I much prefer shooting with the likes of Holly and India – it's just such a laugh. You feel a bit lost and lonely shooting by yourself. Although I think we get more done.

Have you got any Rosie Jones nights out coming up soon?
We've got one planned for this week, actually. Me, India, Holly, Glover and Charlotte ▶

“Vegas was nine solid nights – and a few days – of drinking!”

McKenna. I think that's a pretty strong group, right? Then we're all having a big sleepover at India's house after.

That'll be all pillow fights in your knickers, we presume?
Er, of course!

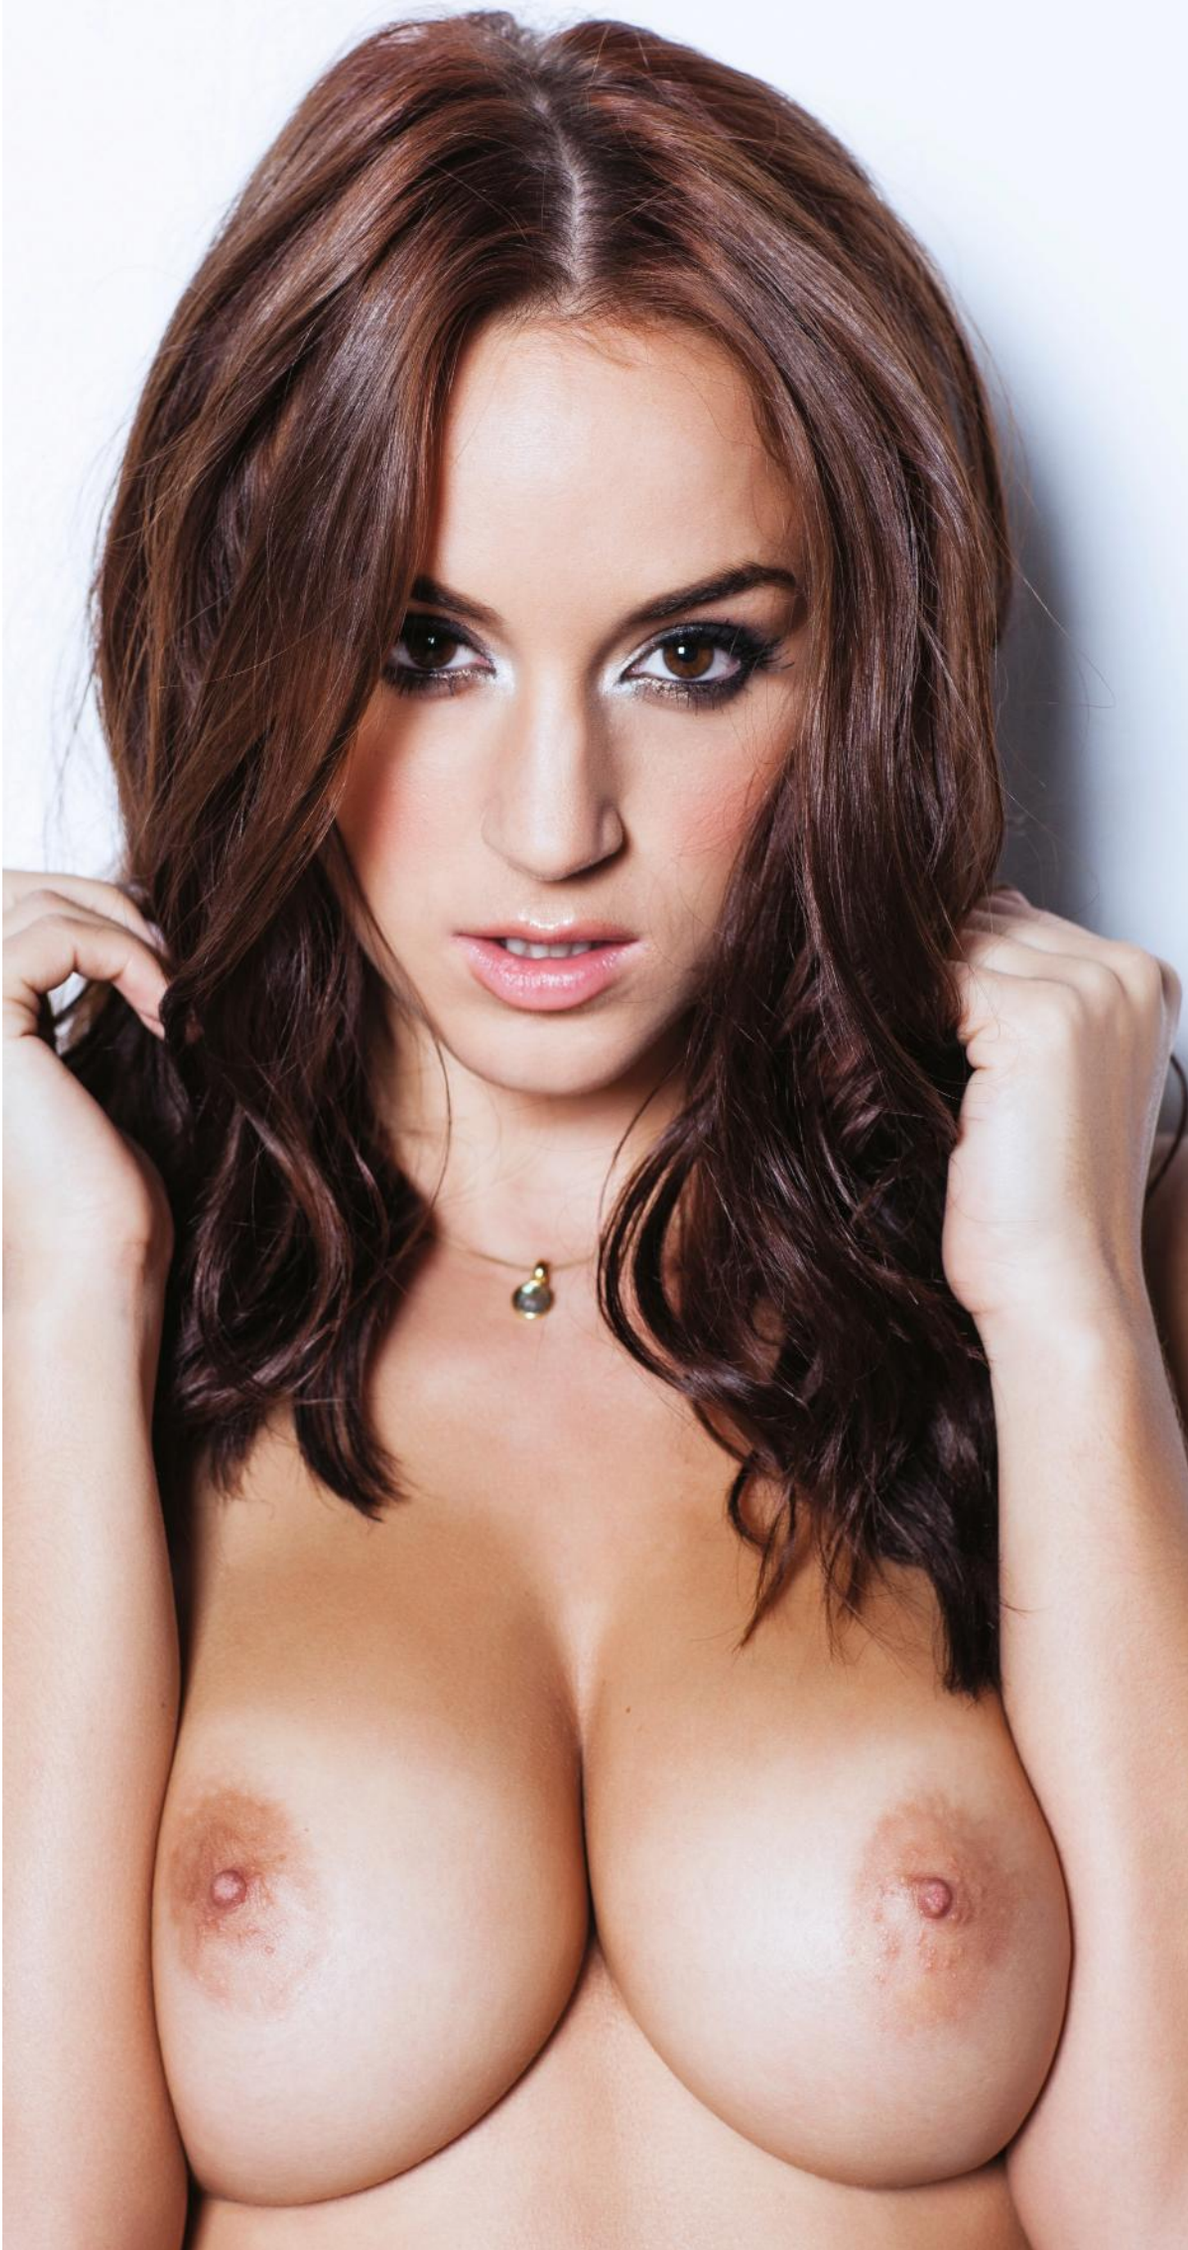

After all this "neknominate" malarkey, do you lot have a fail-safe drinking game?
I've got one that I always play, so perhaps it's time to learn a new one. The one I always do is a bit complicated. The point of the game is that you can never show your lips, if that makes sense. And then you all have vegetable names, and you have to call out each other's vegetable...

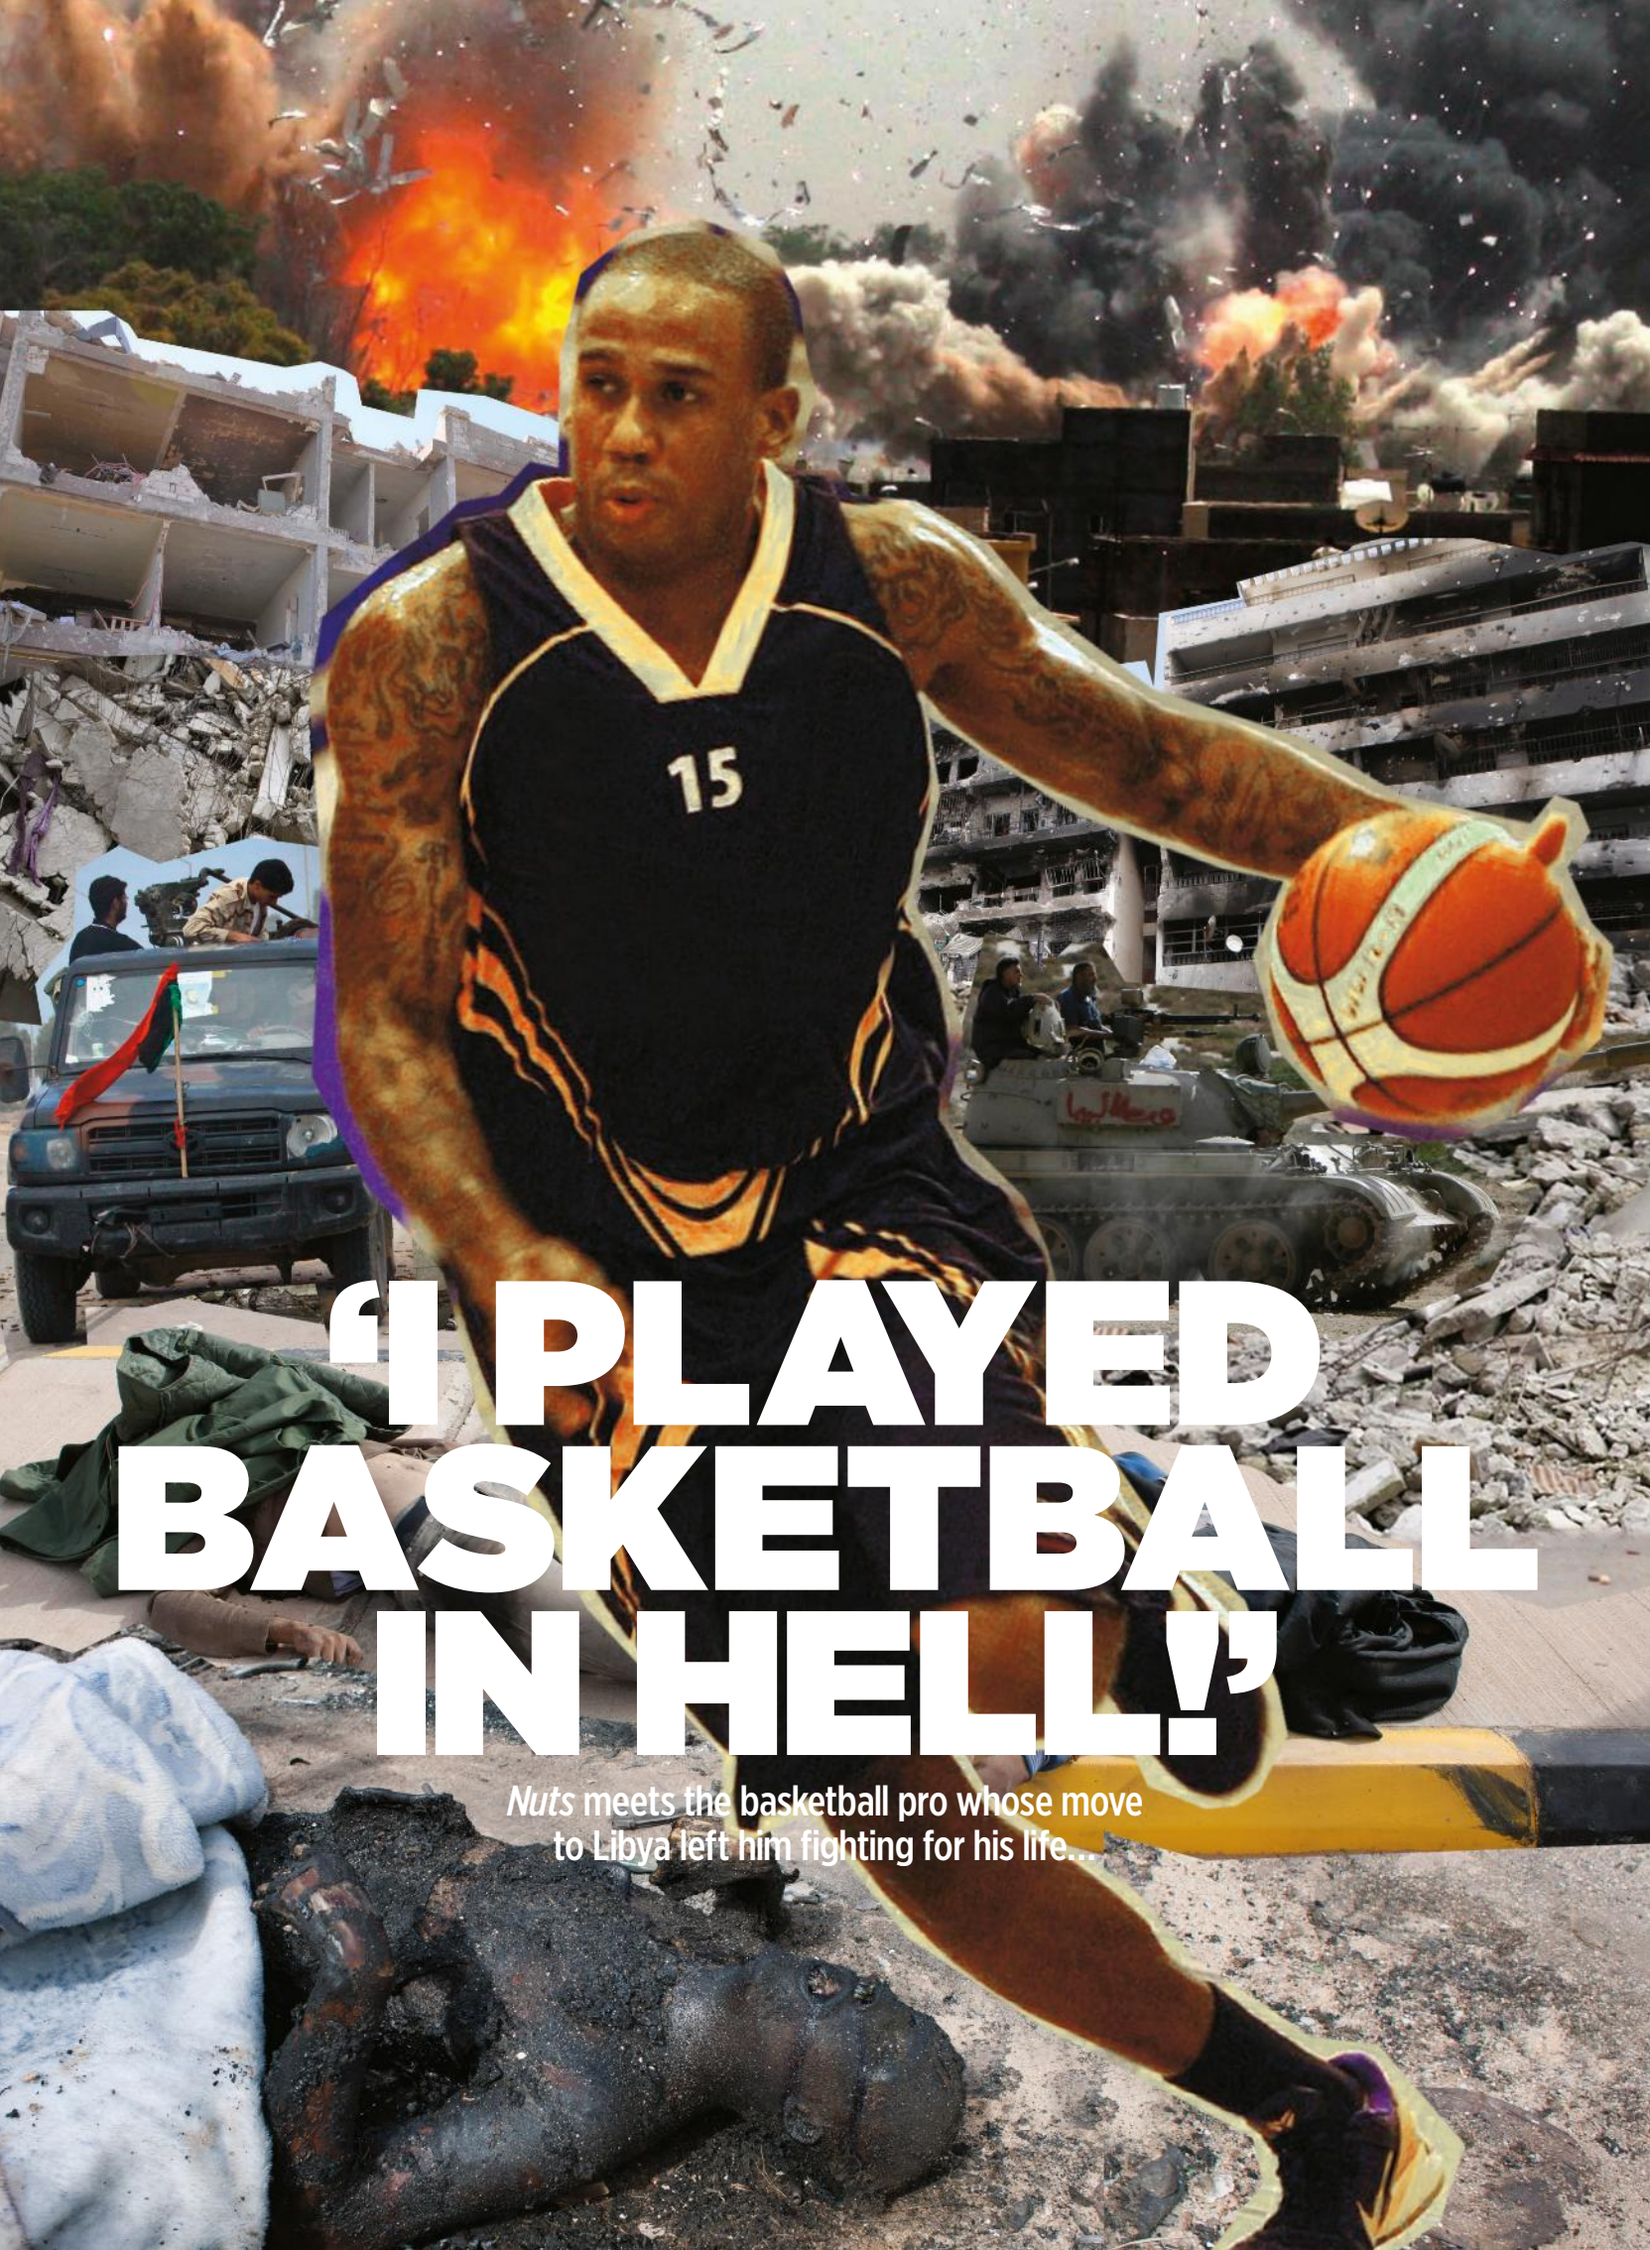

Eh? What on earth are you on about?
Ha-ha! Its sounds ridiculous, I know. But once you get into it, and you're all drunk and can't stop laughing, it's impossible to hide your lips. It's like doing an impression of a toothless old woman. Although, like all drinking games, I'm not really sure when you're supposed to drink. Just Google it!

OK! Did you play that game a lot in Las Vegas?
We always play it in restaurants and manage to make a scene. But Las Vegas was amazing. It was pretty much nine solid nights – and a few days – of drinking. And a bit of work, too, of course.

Of course! Thanks for the chat, Rosie. Finally then, there's not much going on between now and spring. Got any advice for getting through this dull part of the year?
It's around about now that you should start planning your summer holiday – that should help to get you all excited. Plus they've already released loads of festival line-ups. I'll be off to Wireless again this year. And if none of that cheers you up, just buy yourself an early Easter egg. They start to creep into supermarkets around now.

INTERVIEW: SI CUNNINGHAM

‘I PLAYED BASKETBALL IN HELL!’

Nuts meets the basketball pro whose move to Libya left him fighting for his life...

FORMER NBA basketball player Alex Owumi thought he was making a dream move to the riches of the Libyan Basketball League, but he soon found himself caught up in the middle of a bloody civil war. Here's his remarkable tale of survival...

Hello Alex. Why did you chose to play basketball in Libya?
It was 2010 and I was based in Macedonia. It was pretty bad – I used to get a lot of racial abuse and had bottles thrown at me. I told my agent to get me out of there. Two days later, I was told Al-Nasr [basketball team] in Libya wanted me. The prospect of playing in Africa excited me, as I was born in Nigeria.

Weren't you worried about Libya's political problems?
I was aware of connections with terrorist attacks like the Lockerbie bombing, but when I was growing up, Gaddafi was the face of Africa.

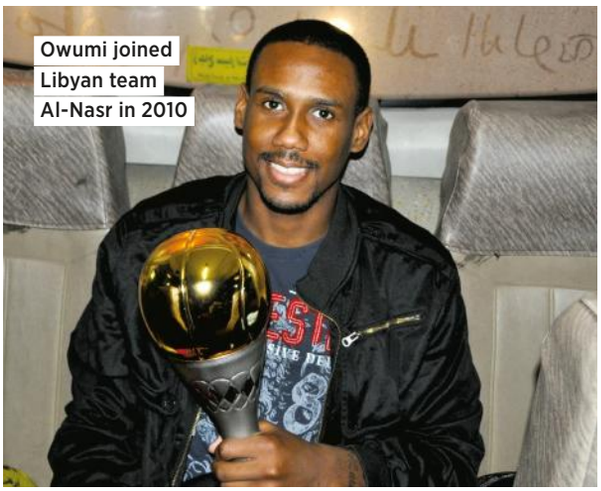

What were your first impressions of the country?
It was scary at first – my street was run down and the lift up to my place didn't even have a door. But I was given a place on the top floor, and my front door was like a bank vault. When I walked in, I was like, "Wow!" The place was like the Taj Mahal! I later found out it belonged to Gaddafi, and that he owned the team I was about to begin playing for.

What was the pressure of playing for Gaddafi like?
My team-mates were under fire, and you could see it in their eyes. The pressure was really on. I'm not saying I would've been beaten up, but the others might have been targeted. Gaddafi's security had done it before to them. Luckily, we went on to win six straight games!

How were you rewarded for good results?
After one game, the team's president came up to me and handed me an envelope. "This is from our leader," he said. On top of this, I never paid for anything. People saw the recognition I'd received from their leader.

What can you tell us about the outbreak of war?
I was on my roof, looking over the city. A crowd gathered and suddenly there were gunshots. I lost all feeling in my body, and my heart skipped beats. The sun was out, but as soon as that first shot went off the sun went away and it felt like evil spirits had taken over. All I could see were bodies all over the ground.

What were your worst fears?
I thought the military were going to invade the city, taking people from their houses. This did happen in the end. I heard screams from outside my front door so rushed to see what was going on. My next door neighbour was out cold, and a soldier was beating up the man's daughter. My first instinct was to take that soldier's life, but another soldier with an AK-47 forced me back into my apartment.

Owumi joined Libyan team Al-Nasr in 2010

So you were trapped in your apartment?
Yes, in Benghazi you used to buy all your food fresh, and I'd given what I had to my neighbours. But as two days turned to four I became desperate. I did what I had to do to survive – I drank water from the toilets and rainwater. I ate anything – worms, cockroaches or a dead bird. It was like stuff I'd seen Bear Grylls do.

Muammar Gadaffi after being captured in October 2011

Did you think you would die in that apartment?
The air force was dropping bombs two blocks from my apartment, day and night. You could smell death in the air, for sure. I couldn't sleep. There was never more than five minutes' peace between the bombs and gunshots.

How did you make it out?
I was locked in my apartment for 16 days before I said to myself, "Enough is enough." Nobody was coming to help me. I had to do it myself. My apartment had no power, so I couldn't charge my phone. I would turn it off and on to see if people had tried to contact me. Luckily, one day I left it on longer and my friend Mustapha got through. He said we had to get to the team president's house – he had a plan.

What was the plan?
First, I had to make it to his house. I got onto the street – there were bodies everywhere – and kids I used to play with running around with guns and machetes. They carried me through the back streets because I was too weak to walk. They risked their own lives to save an American. From there, we would go by car to the Egyptian border – about a seven-hour drive.

Did you come under attack?
Gaddafi had actually hired mercenaries from West Africa to kill the rebel soldiers. At the first rebel checkpoint, we were hauled out of the car. Mustapha was kicked to the floor and a gun pointed at his head. I was ready to go down fighting. If they killed him, I was next for sure. Luckily, our driver managed to convince them we were just basketball players. For the rest of the journey we had similar issues. It was scary buying petrol while tanks rolled past. When we reached the border we were taken into a refugee camp inside Egypt's biggest prison. We would sleep in the yard next to a place murderers were kept!

What do you make of your time as Gaddafi's star player?
If only I knew what turmoil was going to unfold, I'd never have gone there. ✖

10 RUDE QUESTIONS!

And a real girl to answer them!

Taylor

18 Surrey

1 Where's the best place you've had sex?
"I had some kinky fun in the sea a few years ago. The waves disguised what we were actually doing. If I told you all the naughty details, I'd get in trouble, but you get the gist."

2 What's your trademark move in the bedroom?
"My absolute favourite is sticking my bum in the air and giving it some grind. It shows off my amazing behind and the chap can never resist a bit of a cheeky bum grab."

3 What really turns you on?
"Being kissed up the inside of my thigh gives me goosebumps. I love working up a sweat beforehand, so a confident chap who can take control is a must. I also love joining them in the shower afterwards."

4 Is it better to give or receive?
"I love to give because knowing I'm pleasing a bloke is such a massive turn on. But who doesn't love to receive? I love using my tongue in the bedroom, put it that way."

5 What one thing would you really like to try but haven't yet?
"I'd love to get down and do it in the toilet on a plane. The risk of getting caught would be a thrill, but it'd be a massive cringe if we got busted!"

6 Ever got it on with a girl?
"A few cheeky snogs. It's not really my thing, but if I had a chance with Megan Fox, I wouldn't turn it down!"

7 What's your favourite sexy outfit?
"Costumes aren't really my thing, but I have many sexy outfits from Ann Summers. Crotchless tights are my favourite. I'm a girly-girl, so anything that's pink and lacy is right up my street."

8 What's the rudest thing you've ever done?
"I love taking a naughty selfie. I accidentally sent one to the wrong person once. Maybe one day I can feature one of my cheeky selfies in here? I know you wouldn't be disappointed."

PHOTOS: PAUL MUSSO

9 What's your favourite position?
"I love giving my booty a jolly good twerk. So one of my favourite positions has to be doggy-style. I love it when my man is behind and takes control."

10 Have you ever made a sex tape?
"No, I wouldn't want to reveal all my naughty secrets! Although making a sex tape and watching it back would be a definite turn-on."

LADIES CONFESS! TO OUR SECRETARY!

Racy revelations from our female readers!

CONFESSION OF THE WEEK!

‘We copped it in the car park’

I WAS at the pub last week when a boy I’d been checking out began flirting with me. Soon we were snogging and pushing ourselves against each other. He took my hand and we went to the car park. I reached for his erection and started pleasuring him before he lifted me onto a nearby car where he thrust deep inside me. Just as we both climaxed, a beam of light shone onto us and then came the flashing blue lights. I ended up with a hefty fine. It was worth it though!

Michelle Swansea

‘Fun with the roofer’

MY FRIEND and I had recently moved into a new house where the roof was needing repair, so the landlord agreed to send someone to fix it. One afternoon I felt really horny and I thought I’d play by myself in my bedroom. I was feeling very relaxed, working my fingers the way I loved. I glanced up at the window and noticed one of the roofers was watching through the gap in the curtains. He looked very guilty but I gave him a huge smile and got up off the bed. I walked to the window, naked from the waist down, and invited him in to give me a hand. A few minutes later, his boss buzzed on the front door looking for his mate and he had to use the excuse of needing the loo!

Cherry Birmingham

‘A hard day at the office’

TO MAKE some extra money, I took a job cleaning offices on weekends. Most of us are women, but there are a couple of cute guys too. I flirted with one all the time. One day, I caught him in the disabled loo trying to open a dispenser. I explained he needed a key but he just looked confused. I stepped towards him, closed the door and he face lit up into a grin. He grabbed me by the waist and kissed me. Pulling my shirt up, he pushed my bra over my boobs and started kissing my nipples. Things got really passionate and he ended up taking me over the sink. We’ve worked our way through most of the toilets now!

Nuts HOOK-UPS CONFESSIONS!

I joined Nuts Hook-Ups recently and started messaging a local lad I liked the look of. We hit it off instantly and arranged a date for the following week. On the evening of the meal, I put on my tight black dress to show off my figure. As soon as we sat at the table, sparks began to fly. He kept dropping subtle hints and kissing my neck. He stroked my thigh and reached up my dress, pulling my knickers aside. I pulled out my lipstick, “accidentally” dropping it, and his hands went to his flies to release his erection for me to play with. As I came out from under the table, I winked and walked towards the toilets. We got a few looks from restaurant staff but nobody questioned us!

FA CUP SPECIAL!

Chamberlain: 'We've got it all to play for!'

Arsenal's star on cups, cups and more cups!

"I shall play this game running in the style of a Pearly King"

Hi Alex! How would you sum up Arsenal's season so far?
We've done great. There've been ups and downs, but we're in the mix for a number of trophies. I don't think you can ask for better than that.

Isn't it mission impossible in the Champions League though? You're going to Bayern 2-0 down!
If we show the right character and desire there's always a chance because we certainly have the players to turn things round. It won't be easy but we went to their place last season and came away with a 2-0 win. There are two legs for a reason, so we still have an opportunity.

What's the most important factor in the title run-in?
Self-belief and togetherness. We're a tight unit, which counts for a lot. Something we've added to our make-up is the ability to win games even when we're not at our best, as all the best teams do.

Do you get annoyed when people write Arsenal off?
Not really, it just comes with playing at a club like Arsenal. There's always negative stuff, but we stay focused on the next game.

That's the FA Cup quarter-final against Everton!
Yep! We're going into this game with a good feeling. We're in a great position in the league, too, so there's loads to play for. The FA Cup's a great competition – with all the history and what it means to people – so we'll give everything to get through.

You seem like you're champing at the bit!
My knee injury on the first day of the season was difficult but seeing the lads perform so well spurred me on to get back to fitness and be involved again. I've played so little football this season that I can't wait for the next games. I love playing, that's who I am, so to have that taken away taught me a lot about how fortunate I am.

There's a lot of talk about what's your best position. What do you think?
I'll play wherever I'm told! I see myself eventually as someone who operates centrally but if the boss wants to use my pace out wide, I'm happy to do that. The focus is on the team, not on any individual.

Thanks, Alex. Finally, do you think you'll be on that plane to Brazil in the summer?
I hope so! The World Cup's the pinnacle, a tournament you watch on the TV and think, "man, I'd love to be part of that." If it happens it'll be a dream come true but, as always, the first priority right now is Arsenal, winning the next game and getting trophies.

They all hailed their winner of the longest tongue competition

"Uh-oh! The Bad Facial Hair Police are after me!"

Baines: 'We're not afraid of Arsenal!'

Everton's left-back on the hunt for trophies!

Hi Leighton! Your new manager Roberto Martinez has you flying at the moment. Were you expecting such a smooth transition?
You're right, the new boss has come in and done great. Maybe some people thought that with the changes in management and coaching that we'd take time to settle, but it's gone great. Maybe we've surprised a few people along the way!

So just how good do you think Martinez is?
He came in with new ideas and a really enthusiastic attitude. Whether you're young or more experienced, there's always something fresh to learn under a new regime. That's what's been so good. We haven't rested on our laurels or accepted that "change takes time". Everyone has embraced what has happened and run with it. Having a new start can be exciting.

Was that why you signed a new contract at Everton? Everyone knows you were heavily linked to your former boss at Man United.
The club's future is strong so I wanted to sort my own out really, one way or another. When there's a load of transfer talk about you flying around, it can be a bit distracting, if I'm completely honest. It was flattering that the manager really wanted me to stay at the club and I was happy to end the speculation.

You kept very quiet during the transfer window!
I had too much respect for the club to do anything else. It was obviously nice to hear that Man United were interested but, at the end of the day, I didn't want to behave in a manner which would disrespect Everton or the fans. That's just not me. Now it's sorted, I'm happy just to get on with things.

Is the FA Cup tie against Arsenal one of the season's biggest challenges so far?
To be sure, but that said, we're not afraid of anybody. You have to beat big teams if you want to win any trophy. We're looking forward to it because we know we can beat anyone on our day. And Everton have been starved of trophies for too long.

Thanks, Leighton. Finally, Everton's new style is, like a lot of English clubs right now, very continental. Do you think you'd be a hit if you qualified for Europe?
We like to get the ball down, keep possession, pass and play, definitely. I don't think we'd have many adjustments to make if we qualified. But before we start thinking of that, we've got a hell of a lot of hard work to do!

England vs Wales: head to head!

An expert's view of the teams ahead of their crunch clash!

THE SIX Nations this year is wide open, with England, Wales, France and Ireland all in with a chance of winning. England and Wales have the easier final games, so this weekend's clash at Twickenham could well decide who ends up as champions. We asked former England star and BT Sport's rugby expert David "Flats" Flatman to give us his thoughts...

- England vs Wales, 9 Mar, BBC One/HD, 3pm.

INTERVIEW: PETE CASHMORE
PHOTOS: ACTION IMAGES, GETTY IMAGES

ENGLAND PEDIGREE!

Ex-Saracens and Bath man David played for England eight times between 2000 and 2002.

MENTAL STRENGTH

"England's performance in France in their opening Six Nations match showed astonishing courage, bettered only by their brutal win over Ireland in their last outing. On that day in Twickenham, they showed the world just how tough they can be to beat. But Wales have an arsenal of weaponry that's the envy of many international sides. Are the Welsh good enough to win? Yes. However, I just can't see the likes of Tom Wood, Dylan Hartley and Joe Launchbury allowing that to happen, such is their will to succeed. They'll win the mental battle, despite their average age being so low."

VERDICT: ENGLAND

"England will hope to exact a bloody revenge on the Welsh after a quite unforgettable thumping in Cardiff a year ago, so the respective front rows will be looking to set a tone of dominance from the start. In terms of experience, there's no comparison, with nearly 300 caps on the Welsh front line and less than 100 on the English. However, if talisman Dylan Hartley can hit Merthyr giant Adam Jones hard enough to stop him boring in, Joe Marler will have the power to keep things steady. And if Bath's Davey Wilson gets his anchors in, there's no budging him. The home side to win on points, against the odds."

VERDICT: ENGLAND

SIX NATIONS FORM

"Wales arrive having hammered a French side full of glitter which, whether the French can travel or not, takes some doing. England arrive having overcome a fierce Irish side in a savagely physical match that took every one of its 80 minutes to win. England will undoubtedly put up more of a fight than Les Bleus, but the Welsh will be bubbling with confidence. Form makes this a tough one to call, but putting 27 points on France when it mattered is, ultimately, more impressive than a three-point win over Ireland. On paper, Wales edge it. But matches aren't played on paper."

VERDICT: WALES

THE BACKS

"The Welsh back line includes the best back in world rugby: George North. Believe the hype, as this guy is huge, rapid, unnaturally agile and intelligent. Jamie Roberts, too, has all the bulk, line-running guile and timing to cause real problems. However, if Owen Farrell can find a way to better utilise North's Northampton Saints teammate Luther Burrell, the Welsh will have their work cut out. Burrell's the real deal in every sense. He just needs to find a way – with the help of his callers and distributors – to have more influence on the game. England are staunch, but the Welsh have wizardry in their ranks."

VERDICT: WALES

THE FLY-HALVES

"Welsh fly-half Rhys Priestland doesn't play with the same swagger of his predecessors. He was originally selected as a smart, tactically aware game-runner, but for me, he simply hasn't hit the heights many believed he might. What lets the Scarlets star down appears, from the outside, to be his temperament. On this score, England's Owen Farrell is the best. While perhaps not as naturally gifted as Priestland, Saracens man Farrell is as hard as nails. Not only that, he'll kick anything under pressure and he hits to hurt. For me, there's only one winner here, and he'll be in the white of England."

VERDICT: ENGLAND

Flats' overall verdict:

"Anyone who claims to know who'll win this is lying. My prediction is that Wales will bring a huge amount to the party, but that England will simply not permit themselves to be beaten on their own patch. The stakes are high, and I back England to come out fighting and edge a massive game."

Meet Joel Campbell!

Everything you need to know about the man who downed Man United!

ARSENAL FANS the world over will have been chuckling about the fact that one of their own, 21-year-old forward Joel Campbell, thumped a beauty past Man United in their 2-0 humiliation at Olympiakos. He's on loan there, y'see. What else can we tell you about the goal-seekin' Costa Rican? Let's see...

29

He's an alumnus of Costa Rica's top club, Deportivo Saprissa, who've won the Costa Rican title 29 times.

Arsenal signed him in 2011, but immediately sent him out on loan, first to France at Lorient, and then to Real Betis in Spain, in order to get a work permit. He has that permit now, but is spending a third season out on loan, in Greece.

30

He has eight goals in 30 games for his country, including the winner against USA last year.

Arsenal paid Saprissa £880,000 to secure his services, making him just over 1/50th of the cost of Mesut Özil.

His goal against Manchester United was his eighth of the season, More impressively, he managed four assists in a single game in a 5-1 win against OFI Crete last October.

Joel's English-sounding name is a result of the large English-speaking community in Costa Rica, most of whom are descended from Jamaican immigrants. You'll also find a Patrick Pemberton, a Roy Miller, a Kenny Cunningham, a Rodney Wallace and a Jonathan McDonald in the current Costa Rica squad.

14

He also played for Puntarenas, who have had 14 managers in five years. Eat your heart out, Fulham!

KAMMY!

He's the voice of the fans – and he's only in Nuts!

English football is not in crisis!

One bad week doesn't define the league!

THE USUAL doomsayers have been out in force after England's teams failed to win in the Champions League last week.

It's the default reaction – the teams don't play well so the league must be rubbish. Nonsense! It's still the best league in the world, even if the football isn't always the best because of the pace of the game. Certainly, there was a calmness to the way Real shrugged aside Schalke.

There's also talk that this shows how we need a mid-season break – I don't buy that. The squads are big enough to handle a Premier League season – if a player is tired, you rest him. And a top club in the Champions League should have the squad to bring in good players – that's why they're in the Champions League!

"...98, 99, 100. When I look, they'd better be hiding!"

Jose was betrayed!

IT'S BEEN another bizarre week in the Jose Mourinho soap opera. I'm not surprised he's disappointed that his comments about his strikers were made public.

There's an understanding that some stuff stays off the record, otherwise managers will become very guarded in interviews. Note, for example, how guarded David Moyes has become at Man United.

Some journalists don't care, but personally, I'd never dream of betraying managers' trust.

"OK, but just a kiss – and no tongues!"

PHOTOS: ACTION IMAGES

Sturridge could save England!

LET'S HAVE some good news now, and talk about the great form of Daniel Sturridge. This is brilliant news for England with the World Cup imminent!

We could finally have an answer to the striker problem. Sturridge, with Rooney in the Suarez role, will be a handful for any team and give England a real chance. Now that Rooney has sorted his long-term future, I expect him to settle.

Rooney just needs to form the same understanding with Sturridge as Liverpool's "SAS", and then, make no mistake, England are in business.

"Messi? About so high. Coutinho's a wee bit taller..."

Nuts PUB AMMO!

Fantastic facts for boozer-based banter!

Two mammals, the duck-billed platypus and the echidna, lay eggs.

A trained professional bellyflop diver can dive from 12 metres into 12 inches of water without suffering injury.

The Fred Perry wreath logo was originally going to be a pipe, as Fred Perry himself was a keen pipe smoker.

The molten metal left over from cremations, from coffin parts, prosthetic limbs and teeth fillings, is recycled for money.

Liverpool's recent 5-1 defeat of Arsenal included the fastest establishing of a 4-0 lead in Premier League history.

The medical term for a blackhead is an open comedo.

England's first curry house, the Hindostanee Coffee House, opened in London in 1809.

Cornish pasties are first mentioned in literature in the 12th century AD.

Champagne can still maintain a level of bubbliness over 180 years after being made.

The feet of the blue-footed booby, a seabird native to central America, change colour according to how much sex it is or isn't having.

Pub ammo on... 300: Rise Of An Empire

- The hero of the first piece, King Leonidas, had to be written out of the script because Gerard Butler didn't fancy reprising the role.
- Much of the film takes place at sea, but all of the water you see in the film was added digitally.
- The quote "We will fight them in the shade" from the original 300 is still used today as an emblem on Greek military uniforms.
- 300: Rise Of An Empire is in cinemas nationwide from Friday 7 March.
